The timeline diagram illustrates the study's progression from 2016 to 2021. It is divided into five main phases, each represented by a colored box with a corresponding description of the activities:

- 2016-2017: Study design and recruitment (Blue box): Activities include defining the study objectives, developing the study protocol, and recruiting participants.
- 2017-2018: Data collection and analysis (Orange box): Activities include collecting data, performing statistical analysis, and interpreting the results.
- 2018-2019: Publication of results (Green box): Activities include writing the manuscript, submitting it for publication, and responding to reviewer comments.
- 2019-2020: Implementation of findings (Yellow box): Activities include developing implementation strategies, disseminating the findings, and evaluating the impact of the findings.
- 2020-2021: Evaluation of impact (Purple box): Activities include assessing the long-term impact of the findings and identifying areas for future research.

 1. Identify the problem The problem is that the company is not meeting its sales targets. 	 2. Analyze the problem The problem is caused by a combination of factors, including a lack of marketing budget, poor timing of product launches, and a weak sales team. 	 3. Generate solutions There are three potential solutions: increase the marketing budget, improve the timing of product launches, and hire a new sales team. 	 4. Evaluate solutions The first solution is the most cost-effective, but the second solution is the most likely to result in long-term success. 	 5. Implement the solution The company will implement the second solution, which involves improving the timing of product launches and hiring a new sales team. 	 6. Monitor progress The company will monitor progress by tracking sales figures and customer feedback. 	 7. Adjust the solution If the company is not meeting its sales targets, it will adjust the solution by increasing the marketing budget or hiring more sales staff. 	 8. Conclude the process The company has successfully identified the problem, analyzed the causes, generated solutions, evaluated the options, implemented the chosen solution, and is now monitoring progress.

1. The first step in the process of developing a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to determine what customers want and need. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept that addresses this need. This concept should be unique and offer a clear benefit to customers.	2. The second step is to develop a business plan. This plan should outline the company's goals, the market it will serve, and the resources it will need. It should also include a financial forecast, showing the expected revenue and costs over time. A business plan is essential for securing funding and for guiding the company's operations.	3. The third step is to create a prototype. This is a physical model of the product that can be used to test the concept and gather feedback from potential customers. Prototyping allows the company to identify any design flaws or usability issues before investing in full-scale production.	4. The fourth step is to conduct a pilot test. This involves producing a small batch of the product and selling it to a limited group of customers. The purpose of the pilot test is to evaluate the product's performance in the market and to gather feedback from real users.	5. The fifth step is to launch the product. This involves producing and distributing the product on a large scale. The company should have a marketing strategy in place to promote the product and attract customers. Launching the product is a critical moment for the company, as it determines whether the product will be successful in the market.	6. The sixth step is to monitor the product's performance. This involves tracking sales, customer feedback, and other key metrics. The company should be prepared to make adjustments to the product or its marketing strategy based on this data. Monitoring performance is essential for ensuring the product's long-term success.	7. The seventh step is to evaluate the product's overall success. This involves comparing the product's performance against the company's goals and the market's expectations. The company should consider factors such as sales volume, customer satisfaction, and profitability. Evaluating success helps the company decide whether to continue investing in the product or to discontinue it.	8. The eighth step is to plan for the future. This involves identifying opportunities for growth and innovation. The company should consider ways to expand its market, improve its product, or develop new products. Planning for the future is essential for ensuring the company's long-term success.	9. The ninth step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the company's growth and innovation strategies into action. The company should allocate resources, set timelines, and assign responsibilities. Implementing the plan is a continuous process that requires ongoing communication and collaboration.	10. The tenth step is to review the results. This involves evaluating the outcomes of the company's growth and innovation efforts. The company should assess whether it has achieved its goals and whether its strategies are effective. Reviewing results allows the company to learn from its experiences and make improvements for the future.
